USPA News - Three people have died and a fourth person has been injured after two gunmen opened fire on a group in West Baltimore, close to the campus of the University of Maryland, Baltimore (UMB), police say. The shooting happened just before 11 p.m. local time on Tuesday when two vans pulled to the side of a road, after which two gunmen emerged and fired into a group nearby. "Two light colored vans pulled to the side of the road near Fayette and Poppleton Streets at 10:55pm. One suspect emerged from each van and began firing into a group gathered at the corner. Four victims were shot," UMB police said in a statement.

UMB Police only confirmed one person died, but the Baltimore Sun said it had received confirmation from Baltimore Police that two more had died. No arrests have been made.
